Flu Information

The Regular Flu shot is injected into muscle (usually in the upper arm). It has been used for decades and is approved for use in people six months of age and older, including healthy people and people with chronic medical conditions.

The Preservative-Free Flu shot is recommended for pregnant women and people with certain allergies.

Fluzone High-Dose shot is an inactivated vaccine that is available for individuals 65 years and older. It contains four times the typical amount of antigens (which prompt the body to create antibodies) that offer added protection to the vulnerable senior population.

The Egg-Free Flu shot is available for people with an allergy to eggs or those whose religious beliefs require them to avoid eggs.
